A church after
God's own heart

"My prayer is that my teaching will encourage people to confront our culture with the message of God. Seeing God's Word in its Jewish context helps equip Christians to impact their own culture with the power of God's Word. The ancient perspective can serve to make God's Word intensely relevant and our calling to be His disciples more urgent."

Over the past 29 years, Ray has led study seminars in Israel, attended by several thousand people. He is also well known as the host of the "That the World May Know" video series.

"While I have been immersed in the study of the world of the Bible from the greatest scholars, it is the gift of teaching that God has given me. My calling is to present their scholarship to people today in language they can understand."

"The eastern mind is not satisfied knowing about God. The eastern mind hungers for an authentic experience of God in everyday life. That is the focus of my ministry."
